

Black History Month: October

‘Saluting our Sisters’

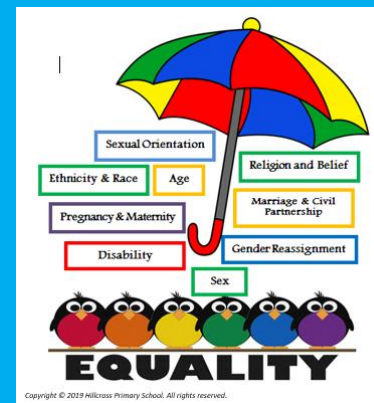

LINKED UNCRC ARTICLES

Article 2 (non-discrimination)

The Convention applies to every child without discrimination, whatever their ethnicity, gender, religion, language, abilities or any other status, whatever they think or say, whatever their family background.

Article 30 (children from minority or indigenous groups)

Every child has the right to learn and use the language, customs and religion of their family, whether or not these are shared by the majority of the people in the country where they live.

Black History Month 2023: Saluting Our Sisters

Look out for posters that will be put up around the school this month

These pay tribute to black women who have made extraordinary contributions across various fields. From literature and music to fashion, sports, business, politics, academia, social care, and healthcare, they will showcase the remarkable achievements of black women and highlight their diverse and profound impact on society.

The National Archives hold more than 11 million national records, including records relating to the experience and influence of black British people in the 20th century. Our records also contain stories about some of the pioneering women throughout history.

REFLECTION

Take a little time to think...find somewhere quiet and give yourself some space...

- Allies are people who actively choose to challenge others when they see people being discriminated against and disadvantaged.
- Allies use their influence to improve the circumstances of others.
- How will you be an ally to others?
